COMMENTS

Economic statistics published in December confirmed some strength in US growth. However, this growth is primarily driven by investments in AI. Indeed, large segments of the American economy, such as the job market, are showing signs of weakness. In Europe, growth remains modest, but massive stimulus packages, particularly in defense and infrastructure, offer hope for recovery.

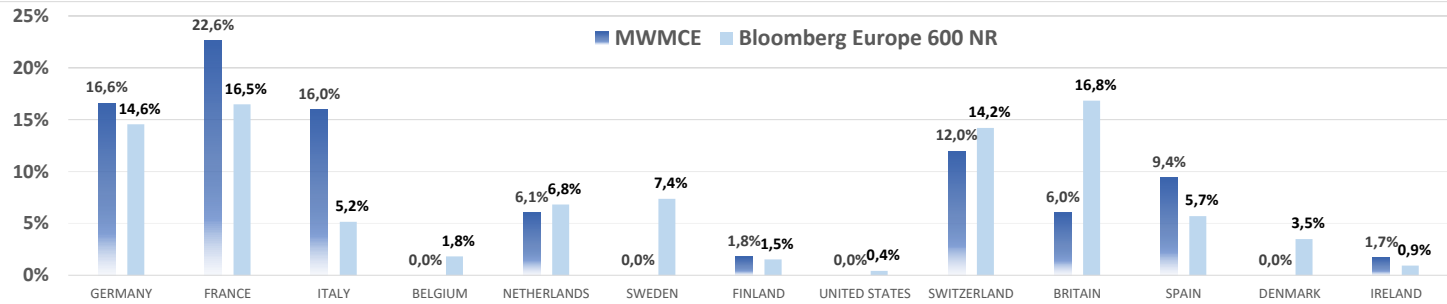

In December, market volatility remained very low. Geopolitical risks, trade tensions, and doubts about the financing of the very large investments announced in AI were set aside by investors. In this context, the major stock exchanges remained generally stable. In the United States, the S&P 500 was unchanged, while in Europe, modest gains of around 2% were recorded. Overall, for the year as a whole, performance was similar, between 16% and 18%.

The fund gained 1.80% over the month, driven by financials. HSBC, Unicredit and Banco Santander rose by around 10% over the month. On the downside, the materials sector underperformed, with Air Liquide and Buzzi falling 2.7% and 2% over the month. In December, we reduced our position in VOSSLOH after an excellent stock market performance and initiated a position in Zalando. We also increased our position in Rheinmetall, which now accounts for more than 4% of the fund. The fund ended the year with a solid performance of 10.9%.
